Crash puts air ambulance plans on hold

By MICHAEL DANIELS

A helicopter crash Friday night in the Gulf of Maine has stalled plans to have an air ambulance service called to speed the transport of seriously injured patients from this area to medical facilities in Lewiston, Portland or Boston.

The medevac helicopter was also to have been available in the event critically injured skiers needed to be transported this winter from Sunday River Ski Resort.

The helicopter crashed into the sea, with four people on board, just before 9 p.m. Friday. It sank shortly after impact, taking its three passengers with it--including two medical personnel and a burn victim being transported from Ellsworth to Maine Medical Center.

The fourth person on board, the pilot, escaped from the wreckage and was eventually rescued--after spending five hours in the bay's 44-degree waters.

The helicopter, described as an "air ambulance," was owned and operated by Airmed Skycare, a newly-formed company offering air-ambulance service within 150 miles of Portland. The helicopter was the only one owned by the company.

Earlier, on the day of the crash, the bright yellow and orange helicopter had been in the Oxford Hills for training exercises with a number of area rescue services, including Tri-Town Rescue and PACE Paramedic Services.

The helicopter had also been at Sunday River last week for training sessions with the skiway's professional and volunteer ski patrollers.

The training exercises had been a preparatory step for establishing a helicopter evacuation capability for the skiway--in the event that seriously injured skiers needed to be transported to more sophisticated medical facilities than those avail-

JUST IN CASE--Sunday River Ski Resort ski patrollers held joint exercises earlier this month with staff of Portland's new air ambulance service, Airmed. The professional and volunteer ski patrollers were trained in helicopter evacuation procedures, including sessions on helicopter communications and landing zone preparation. In addition, patrollers were trained to work with the flight crews, which consist of a pilot, a registered nurse with specialized training in helicopter operations and a flight paramedic. But implementation of the air evacuation option is now on hold, following the fatal crash Friday of Airmed's only helicopter (background). (Photo by Sharon McNeill)

Cross Street project:

Selectmen state their terms

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The Bethel selectmen have put a proposal on the table for the sale of 6.2 acres of town-owned land to the developers of the proposed Cross Street project.

Developer Heinie Merrill said he's "pleased to have a response to work from," but "there's things I cannot do and will not do" in the option agreement proposed by the board.

Merrill and the selectmen are due to meet today (Wednesday) in secret session to discuss the offer.

The selectmen's proposal is for an option expiring at the end of Feb. 1995. The terms of the proposal call for the developers to pay $5,000 for the option (that is, for the option only--the terms proposed for the actual sale of the property are given below.) The option could be extended for a six-month period at the agreement of both parties and the payment of an additional $5,000.

Town's asking price

The proposal calls for the developers, if they wish to exercise the option, to bear the cost of replacing and/or relocating the town's public works garage, ambulance building, recycling center, and of constructing a salt-sand shed. Where land purchase is required, the developers would pay for the new land. The developers would also pay any Cross Street relocation costs beyond those already allocated by the state Department of Transportation.

The details are as follows:

"The Purchase Price of the Property shall be the sum of all costs associated with:

"--Seller's choice of relocating the ambulance building to the Health Center property, together with the costs of design, construction, and engineering, shifting the bay doors from the front to the side of the building, and any site work, utilities work, and landscaping and screening; or the construction of a new building satisfactory to the Seller at a site chosen by the Seller, together with the costs of design, construction, and engineering, and any site work, utilities work, and landscaping and screening; or, the purchase of the ambulance building by the Buyer at a price agreed upon by the parties.

"--Relocating the recycling center to the treatment plant property, together with the costs of design, construction, and engineering, and any site work, utilities work, and landscaping and screening.

"--Relocating the public works department to a location to be named by the Board of Selectmen, together with the costs of design, construction, and engineering, and any site work, utilities work, and landscaping and screening. The public works building will be satisfactory to the selectmen and at a minimum will meet the needs listed on the attached "Notes on a new garage 8/23/93." (The "notes" referred to have not been made public) The winter sand storage shed will be satisfactory to the Selectmen and at a minimum will meet the needs listed on the attached "Notes on a new garage 8/23/93."

"--Any costs exceeding the MDOT contribution for the design, construction and engineering for relocation of the existing Cross Street (the so-called bypass), and any costs associated with the reconstruction of the existing Cross Street.

"--If necessary, purchasing land approved by the Seller for the relocations."

Oxford T&T bids for GTE systems

By WENDY HANSCOM

Oxford County Telephone & Telegraph of Buckfield has offered to buy out GTE Corp.'s telephone operations in Albany, Andover, Bethel, Greenwood, Gilead, Newry, Upton, Roxbury Pond, North Norway and Hebron.

If approved by state and federal regulators, the deal would result in Oxford Tel. & Tel. taking over local exchanges with telephone numbers beginning with 392, 824, 875, 527, 545, 533 and 836.

Directors of Oxford Tel. & Tel. approved the deal earlier this month, according to spokeswoman Judy Jamison. The company has about 150 to 200 stockholders.

"The benefits will mainly be the ability to call locally for service, and mail bills locally," Jamison said. "It will not immediately affect the customers' bills. There are no immediate plans to change rates."

The move would nearly double the number of Oxford Tel. & Tel. customers, from 5,000 to 10,000. The company may also double the number of its employees, Jamison said. Local GTE employees will probably be transferred to Oxford Tel. & Tel., Jamison said.

"Those jobs will just be transferred to us," Jamison said. "We're in the process of working on an employee transfer agreement and probably the (GTE) employees in this area will stay where they are."

Internet puts the world on line

By KIRK SIEGEL

Connecting a home computer to a phone line is no longer a big deal, whether it's to book plane tickets or contact a Congressmen, using services like Compuserve and America On-line. But with last week's installation of a direct, dedicated line to the Internet, Gould Academy students and faculty now can instantly access computers on every continent 24 hours a day.

What puts Gould's system truly on the cutting edge among U.S. secondary schools is that its users are linked to each other through a main "server" on campus, while at the same time they are connected to over 500,000 other networks--and 10 million Internet users--around the globe.

A study by a top computer research group, Bolt, Beranek and Newman, reported in May that although a number of secondary schools in the U.S. had both local and wide area networks, none in the study had been able to connect the two--which is precisely what Gould has accomplished this month.

Gould students are connected to 10 million other Internet users around the globe.

While not every university student would necessarily be impressed, some of the country's top colleges are just now making Internet accessible. At this point, Gould is the only secondary school in Maine with full Internet access, but globally Internet boasts a million new users a month, who belong to smaller networks run by libraries, governments, museums, businesses, and universities.

Not known for their immediate ease of use, Internet connections must be facilitated by a programmer or systems analyst able to piece together a software and communications interface usable by students and faculty who possess only basic computer skills. At Gould, this task has fallen to the school's de facto hardware and software engineer, Dr. Harry "Dutch" Dresser.

In his office, Dresser demonstrates the beauty of the direct link to Internet by downloading a piece of free software from the University of Maine--in a matter of seconds. "The amazing thing is that I could download a program from a computer in Italy or Australia, just as easily and just as quickly," he says. Even simpler will be sending electronic mail, "E-mail," to any one of the millions of users around the world.

Internet, of course, has a jargon all its own, and Dresser is the first person at Gould to learn it. When you want a particular kind of software, you send out an "archie," and when you want information on a topic, you send out a "gopher."

These electronic searchers travel at close to the speed of light through hundreds of thousands of computers throughout the world

THIS PROJECT SCARES ME

To the Editor:

I've been thinking about the "Victoria Station Project" and where I stand. I was recently reading an article in the "Maine Times" entitled, "An Essay on Wendall Berry--Why Community is so Important and How We can Save It." I realized where I stand--it scares me tremendously. I guess I don't know the developers, so it scares me that they are designing this huge complex of buildings for me being a member of the community. Simply, I don't trust the results.

This article discusses how a community is one of evolution, of interaction where people cross paths. A healthy community being one with multiple economic bases. The article quotes Wendall Berry, from his book "Sex, Economy, Freedom and Community." "Community is a locally understood interdependence of local people, local culture, local economy, and local nature. (It is) an understood mutuality of interest ... respect for fellow members . . . enforcement of decency without litigation . . . what works and does not work in a given place," Berry writes.

"Community life is by definition a life of cooperation and responsibility. Private life and public life, without the disciplines of community interest, necessarily gravitate toward competition and exploitation. As private life casts off all community restraints in the interest of economic exploitation or ambition or self-realization . . . the communal supports of public life also and by the same stroke are undercut, and public life becomes simply the arena of unrestrained private ambition and greed." This made me think that this project is too much, too fast. What if it doesn't fit?

Bill Clough's analysis published last week in the Bethel Citizen stated that the project would allow the downtown area to remain as it is. How will that be when there is competition for the in-town merchants at the "Station." It seems that the project is unofficially relocating the town, not by what has emerged from a comprehensive plan with input from the community, but by a proposal from investors. I'm concerned about the impact to the community. I think the original title speaks to the local interest, "Victoria Station." This isn't London, this is Bethel.

It is unavoidable that Bethel will grow, it needs to grow. However, what is additionally uncomfortable to me is that Bethel is quickly heading to a mono-economic base. While this provides a cash flow, what is created is dependency not freedom. A friend said, "Well, we may hate what happens but maybe we can make some money on it all." That's not why I moved to Bethel--to make money on skiers. I moved here because of the quality of life which is directly related to the community.

Years ago I worked for a farmer who was offered a quarter-million dollars for his land so that investors could put in a golf course. He refused, he said "once its gone it's gone." I don't want to find out too late what is gone. Let us go slow. Please read the article or book.

UPSET WITH THE POLICE CHIEF

To the Editor:

As a tenant of the Bethel Park Apartments I am very upset with Police Chief Dale Bellman, and I believe my feelings are shared by many of the residents and non-residents of Bethel Park Apartments. Mr. Bellman spends a lot of his on duty time at this Park. He leaves his car parked and running outside one particular apartment. He spends up to two hours inside this apartment. This should be a great concern to the town. He's being paid for a job he's not doing. Not only that he's wasting town money by leaving his car running in the Park and he's not in it.

This is also very upsetting to the tenants of this Park. Our privacy is being invaded by Mr. Bellman and there have been complaints of harassment from him when he's off duty. Not just one but a few.

Something should be done about this matter. When someone has a job and is being paid to do that job he should do it. If not he should be let go. Mr. Bellman is not doing his job. He's sitting idle up to two hours not in his car--not being available for an emergency.

I do not call that being a respectable police officer. Something has to be done. The people of this town who pay taxes, who pay Mr. Bellman's wages, who pay for the gas in the police car--they should know where their money is going.

REMEMBERING LOUISE ANNIS

To the Editor:

I could not help but think when I received the news about Louise Annis' death of the old adage "the good die young." Sixty-two is not old today, but in the 1790s when one was lucky to live to 40, it would have appeared downright ancient to some of our forebears. In today's terms, however, it is the age when one gets to do everything that was put off during the working years. Louise had just retired and it is indeed sad that she and Oscar will not do all the things they had planned in retirement.

Louise was one of those people whom everyone seemed to like. I am not aware of anyone who disliked her. She was full of fun with a lively personality. It was always an adventure to go to Brooks Bros. to shop. I never knew what she would say and I usually emerged from the store laughing about something we had joked about.

Louise was devoted to her family, but she was also a friendly, outgoing sort. Needless to say, these qualities won her loads of friends. She was also active in the community. One of her special interests was the Middle Intervale Meeting House Society, where she served as treasurer for many years. It is certainly fitting in light of her devotion to the cause of preserving the meeting house that she is buried in the adjoining cemetery.

She was a life member of the Bethel Historical Society; we once discussed volunteer projects she might like to do after her retirement.

All of us who knew Louise (and many knew her much better than I) will greatly miss her humor, kindness, and good will. Yes, the good die young, but she will be long remembered and serve as an inspiration to all who knew her.

School Board considers policy on teaching of 'controversial' issues

By WENDY HANSCOM

The SAD44 School Board approved the first reading Monday night of a policy that sets guidelines for discussing controversial issues in the classroom.

The policy does not define what a controversial issue is. It states that teachers' presentation of the district's curriculum should not be censored, and teachers should allow all viewpoints to be represented.

The policy also permits parents to limit their child's participation in part or all of any controversial discussion.

Board member Marcel Polak said he was in favor of free speech, but felt the policy could be interpreted that teachers should present every view on every issue.

"I want to try to understand how we define controversial issues," Polak said. "Three things come to my mind that could be controversial. Nuclear power can be very controversial. The Holocaust--there are revisionists who claim the Holocaust didn't happen. And evolution is another one. How do we apply this?"

Policy Committee chairman Ray Harrington said the policy is intended to allow the expression of all viewpoints, which may or may not include teaching the specifics of all opinions.

"I think you're trying to comb this with too fine a tooth comb," Harrington said. "We have a responsibility to listen to complaints."

Greenwood Director Amy Chapman said the policy was not intended to create controversy, but to prevent an issue from being removed from classroom discussion because some oppose it.

The first reading of the policy passed easily.

Fuel contract awarded again

Monday the board awarded the district's fuel oil and burner service contract to C.N. Brown & Co.

Last month, the board awarded the fuel oil bid to Brooks Bros. of Bethel.

Brooks Bros.' bid was higher, but board members said they want to do business with a "local company."

Earlier this month, after C.N. Brown formally protested the award and the Finance Committee said the bid specs were unclear, the board rescinded its vote to award the contact to Brooks Bros. and put it back out to bid.

Business Manager Bruce Powell said the difference between C.N. Brown's and Brooks Bros.' bid this time around was approximately $50.

Finance Committee chairman Merton Brown, who originally endorsed giving Brooks Bros. the bid, said he still thought the contract ought to go to "the true local company."

Sid Pew of Andover said it should be purely a business decision.

"The bottom line here is that the board is here to look at the bottom line and go with the low bidder," Pew said. "This is business decision and not a decision on who's more local."

Superintendent Ronald Jenkins said he was upset that the board didn't simply take his recommendation.

"I am very disappointed that the School (Board) is not accepting the recommendation of the superintendent of schools and the business manager," Jenkins said. "We did our job the first time and again the second time. We strongly recommend the acceptance of C.N. Brown for this bid."

The board ultimately awarded the bid to C.N. Brown, with Merton Brown, John Percival of Andover and Fran Tyler of Bethel voting in opposition.

SAD44 to bus skiers?

The board referred to its Buildings and Grounds Committee a request from Sunday River Ski Resort to use SAD44 buses as backup for transporting skiers coming into Bethel on trains.

Sunday River representative Jolan Ippolito told the board Sunday River hopes to bring ski train service in this winter from Portland to Bethel.

Sunday River would have it own transportation lined up, Ippolito said, but wanted a backup system.

The resort would probably be willing to pay for outfitting a few school busses with commercial licenses, providing proper insurance and indemnifying the school system, she said.

The board agreed to have the Buildings and Grounds Committee look at the expense, any legalities involved and report back at the next board meeting.

Other business

Monday evening the board also appointed board members to an ad hoc committee to study the possibility of converting to year-round education.

District staff, parents and teachers will also be named to the committee.

The board also accepted the resignation of Telstar science teacher Jim Fiske.

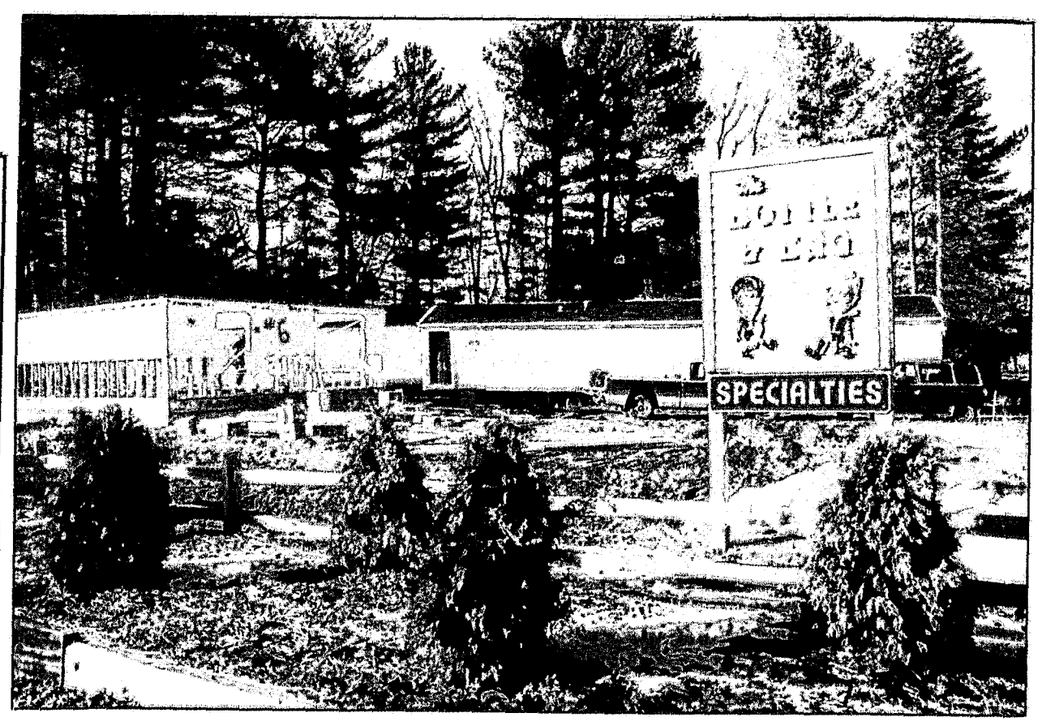
Roberts Wordsworth was appointed long-term substitute biology teacher for Telstar high school in place of Richard Roy, who is on leave due to health reasons.

Bethel Director Edleen Winslow was absent Monday.

LARRY SMITH APPOINTED TO NATIONAL VFW POST

Larry G. Smith Sr., a member of VFW Post 11363 in Bethel, has been appointed by VFW National Commander-in-Chief George R. Cramer, to serve as a National Aide-de-Camp, Recruiting Class for 1993-94. Smith is a resident of Bethel.

Cramer, head of the over two million member organization of overseas veterans commented, "It is because of the tireless efforts of civic and patriotic minded citizens like Comrade Smith that the veterans and the communities the VFW serves have been affected in a positive manner.



READY SOON? Work has resumed on the Bottle & Bag shop next to the Evan's Notch District Ranger Station on Bridge Street. As of the past weekend, the first floor framing was nearly complete, and the two modular units were due to be put in place today (Wednesday). The wine and food shop was originally scheduled to open last winter, but was held by financing difficulties, according to Dr. Elaine Pitkin, one of the two partners in the enterprise. Pitkin said she and her partner, Roberta Taylor, hope to have the new shop open by Christmas.

THIS WEEK AT THE

Moses Mason House

All members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the next monthly meeting will be held on Dec. 2 and feature the annual "Christmas with the Masons," beginning at 6:30 p.m. with an early 19th century Christmas celebration at the Dr. Moses Mason House.

The house will be decorated as it might have been in the early 19th century with boughs, berries, and fruit; music will be played; mulled cider and cookies will be served from the hearth of the winter kitchen. At 7:30 p.m. the monthly meeting of the Society will be held. During the program portion of the meeting slides of Society activities during the past year as well as old photos will be featured.

The annual volunteer dinner sponsored by the Museum Committee of the Society for all the volunteers who helped last summer was held on Friday, Nov. 19. A beef stew supper was served followed by a slide presentation on the Shakers by Society Curator of Collections Randall H. Bennett. Following the meal, Museum Committee Chair Judy Haskell and Society Director Stanley R. Howe expressed the Society's gratitude to all those who made the summer such a success despite the sewer and storm drain construction surrounding the Dr. Moses Mason House during much of the season.

Another issue of the Society's quarterly, "The Bethel Courier," will be out soon. Anyone wishing a complimentary copy should call the Society at 207-824-2908 or write P.O. Box 12, Bethel, Me., 04217.

DEP tire dump action coming?

By WENDY HANSCOM

State regulators may be ready to take legal action against Gordon's Tire Dump in Greenwood.

In late July, the Department of Environmental Protection issued a consent agreement to tire dump owners Peter and Susan Gordon, and gave them 14 days to sign it.

Details of the order were not released. But DEP environmental specialist Michael Parker said in August that the order would require the couple to bring their Rabbit Road tire dump in compliance with state law or face possible prosecution.

The Aug. 12 deadline passed without the Gordons signing the consent agreement. Parker said later that month that the Gordons had requested a meeting to discuss the proposal.

Since that time, Parker has not returned numerous calls from The Citizen to check on the status of the proposed consent agreement. But he did speak last week to Greenwood selectman Marie Bartlett last week.

According to Bartlett, Parker said he had scheduled a meeting with the state Attorney General's Office for Dec. 9.

If that's the case, it would appear the DEP is seeking advise on a revision of the consent agreement or contemplating taking long threatened legal action against the tire site.

Susan Gordon said Monday that the couple have not signed a consent agreement. She said they have sent in all information that the DEP has requested, and they have no idea what the state intends to do. Parker has also not returned her recent phone calls, Gordon said.

Parker told The Citizen in August that if the Gordons refused to sign the consent agreement he would recommend court action.

"If (Peter Gordon) doesn't sign the agreement, one of the options is that we go and get a court order to stop any import of tires to the site," Parker said, "That's essentially the only option I'm going to pursue."

Missing hunter found in Upton

By JOHN VINCENT

A lost hunter was found in the Upton woods Saturday after spending four hours trying to make his way through the trees in the dark.

"I guess it just got dark on him quicker than he thought," said Warden Don Gray of hunter Herman Winkeovich, of Stratford, Conn.

Winkeovich was hunting with a group of other hunters, who also made it back to their camp in Upton and reported him missing when he did not return, Gray said.

Gray said Winkeovich had only a pen-light to guide him and had found a river which he was walking along when he was rescued.

Searchers off the East B Hill Road finally got near enough to Winkeovich to get him to fire a return shot.

Susan Gordon said Monday that the couple have not signed a consent agreement. She said they have sent in all information that the DEP has requested, and they have no idea what the state intends to do. Parker has also not returned her recent phone calls, Gordon said.

Parker told The Citizen in August that if the Gordons refused to sign the consent agreement he would recommend court action.

"If (Peter Gordon) doesn't sign the agreement, one of the options is that we go and get a court order to stop any import of tires to the site," Parker said. "That's essentially the only option I'm going to pursue."

Missing hunter found in Upton

By JOHN VINCENT

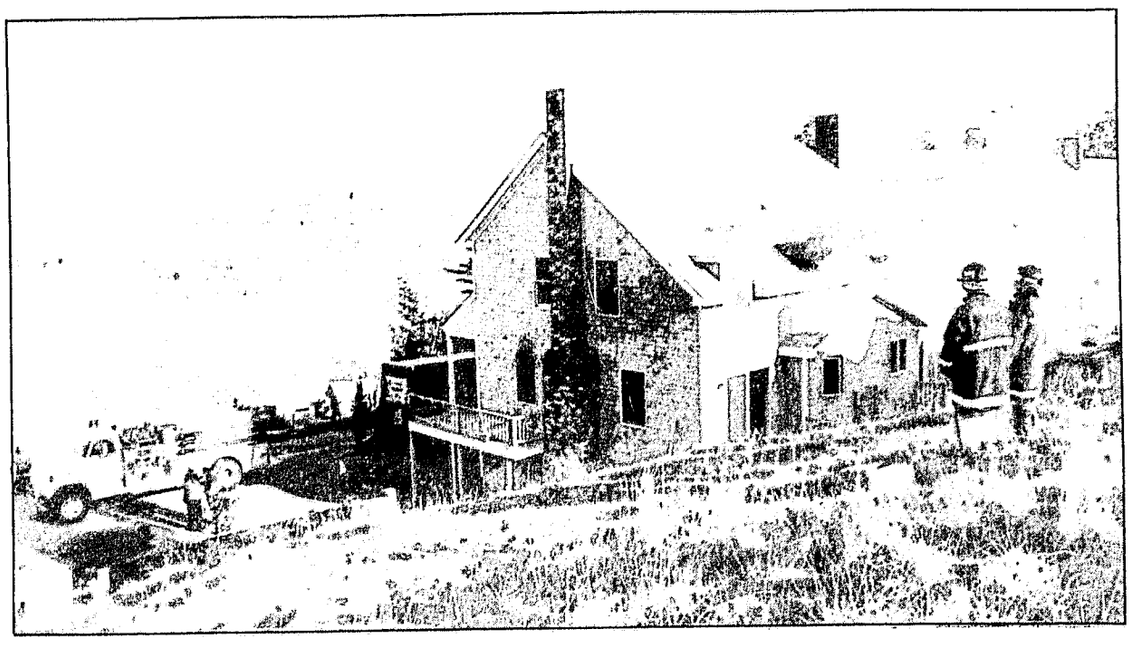
A lost hunter was found in the Upton woods Saturday after spending four hours trying to make his way through the trees in the dark.

"I guess it just got dark on him quicker than he thought," said Warden Don Gray of hunter Herman Winkcovich, of Stratford, Conn.

Winkcovich was hunting with a group of other hunters, who all made it back to their camp in Upton and reported him missing when he did not return, Gray said.

Gray said Winkcovich had only a pen-light to guide him and had found a river which he was walking along when he was rescued.

Searchers off the East B Hill Road finally got near enough to Winkcovich to get him to fire a return shot.



CONDO FIRE SQUASHED QUICKLY--Bethel and Newry firefighters swiftly extinguished a smoky blaze last Thursday at Eden Ridge Condominiums on Vernon Street in Bethel. Unit renters Mr. and Mrs. Allan Dreyfuss returned home from shopping Thursday to find the condo full of smoke. Electrical wiring in the unit's living room is suspected to be the cause of the blaze, according to Bethel Fire Chief James Young. There was substantial smoke and heat damage, Young said. (Photo by Michael Daniels) able locally.

"Our resort is located about six miles from The Bethel Area Health Center, which does a great job of delivering care for minor injuries," said Burt Mills, vice president of mountain operations at the resort. "And we're about 30 minutes by road from Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway, which does an excellent job of handling orthopedic cases. But serious injuries need to be transferred to Portland or Lewiston after they're assessed. The helicopter can make the trip from the mountain to Maine Medical Center in Portland in half an hour--the same time a conventional ambulance would take to reach Stephens Memorial."

But with Airmed's only medevac craft now out of commission, the fate of the new program is unclear.

Resort officials still hope to arrange some form of air evacuation capability, said spokesman Skip King, but it is uncertain if or when Airmed will be back in business.

The helicopter that went down Friday was piloted by Sean Rafter, owner of Airmed Skycare.

Rafter, who suffered fractured vertebrae and bruises in the accident, said later he intended to return to the medevac business as soon as possible.

Internet

and come back with a list of where to find what you're looking for.

Logically, the library is one of the first places Internet is being tested. "I've been having a great time searching for books on URSUS (U-Maine's information retrieval system) and on Harvard University's system," says Gould librarian Jane Carlson, a former library staff assistant at Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government.

Even prior to Internet, a Gould student could do a computer search for information from 110 periodicals stored on CD-ROM, and save abstracts or text of articles to a word processing file.

But given Internet's wide use among academics, millions of professional papers, specialized electronic journals, and "conversations" on thousands of subjects will be available from any computer on the network.

Gould will initially make available 2500 of these conversations, so that a student can take his or her pick and read of what people are writing about everything from apartheid to Zionism. (But not to so-called "adult" topics on the Internet--at the request of Dresser, a programmer in Orono has limited the conversations available at the school to those deemed appropriate for high-school age students.)

There are two types of Internet participants, Dresser said: "lurkers," who just read what other people are saying, and "posters," who respond with their contributions to the discussion.

Eventually the school hopes to wire the dormitories so that students can do everything from their rooms that they can currently do in the computer lab and main classroom building.

(Note: "Dutch" Dresser's Internet E-mail address is: dresserh@gould1.gould.pvt.k12.me.us.)

Telstar also has Internet link

An existing computer connection for the ITV program at Telstar is also connected to Internet, according to SAD44 Adult Education Director Cathy Newell,

"All of the sites on the ITV system are connected to Internet through the University's computer network," said Newell, who has been doing some research on Internet over the past year.

Last year, for example, an ITV meteorology class required its students to access weather data from a campus in the Midwest through the Internet. The University of Maine library and information retrieval system (URSUS) can also be used by ITV students.

The Telstar ITV site has a dedicated line to the University of Maine. Next semester, two of the ITV classes will actually use computer linkages exclusively for their entire course.

Students would use modem communication for information sharing and "conferencing."

From the Bethel Police log:

Thefts and burglaries keep officers busy

Police investigated several thefts and burglaries last week.

On Nov. 15, a Bridge Street resident reported that she looked out a window and saw one male sitting in the family's car and another standing beside it. The men were frightened off when the woman yelled to her husband. Police checked the neighborhood, but found no suspects.

On Nov. 16, an Albany man reported his home had been broken into and a rifle stolen. Police turned the information over to the Oxford County Sheriff's Office.

Wednesday, Bethel Auto Sales reported that a vehicle parked on the lot had been broken into and a car radio valued at $200 stolen.

Thursday, a Mason Street resident reported that while his car was parked in his driveway, an ashtray containing $10 in change was stolen. Sunday, The Pleasant Valley Grange asked for extra patrol, because the grange hall had been recently broken into.

In other police news last week, police investigated a report of a Telstar High School student assaulting another high school student.

Saturday, a Main Street woman reported receiving harassing phone calls from two women. Police talked to the two women accused of making harassing calls and both agreed to stop.

Saturday, police responded to a complaint of loud music at Bethel Park Apartments.

Telephones

are digital (fiber optic), except in Upton and Roxbury, Jamison said.

GTE plans to change Roxbury Pond over to digital equipment in the spring, Jamison said, and Oxford Tel. & Tel. hopes to upgrade phone lines in Upton eventually.

"We have no immediate plans for Upton," Jamison said. "But I'm sure we'll make an improvement in Upton as soon as possible."

Oxford Tel. & Tel. was founded in 1904 and currently serves exchanges in West Paris, Sumner, Canton, North Turner, Turner, Buckfield, Woodstock and Hartford. It's last major expansion was in 1981, when it acquired the Bryant Pond Telephone Co.

The company is part of the Maine Telecommunications Group, a consortium of independent telephone companies, which has signed a purchase and sale agreement with GTE for roughly 46,000 access lines in 48 exchanges in Maine.

Neither side is disclosing the sale price, but both say the deal should be closed by June 30.

Other members of MTG include Utilities Inc. of Standish, Lincolnville Telephone Co, ST Enterprises of Dodge City, Kan., and West Enfield Communications of Rochester, N.Y.

Calling area changes coming?

The proposed sale should not affect the Public Utilities Commission's work on the Extended Service package, Jamison said.

Since 1988 the PUC has been looking at local flat-rate service.

Some small communities in the state have complained that their basic calling areas are too small. The communities pay for a significant number of toll calls each month to nearby population centers.

In Hebron, for example, it's a toll call to every community outside the town.

State regulators are drafting a plan which would allow all Maine phone users to decide what their basic-service calling area should be.

The PUC has proposed two major plans.

One plan would let customers continue to make unlimited calls within their own community, and expand the service to the areas called most frequently by the majority of customers in the community.

Another choice would let customers add toll-free service within 10 or 20 miles of their community.

How much money customers could save is uncertain. The wider calling area would come with a larger price tag for basic monthly rates. But some customers may save on in-state toll calls.

The PUC has set March 5, 1994 as the deadline for ruling on whether or not to proceed with the Extended Service package, and what choices will be given to Maine's 700,000 telephone customers, according to PUC Administrative Director Marjorie Marcotte.

Gould Academy

New lights will save $$$

A Central Maine Power (CMP) program designed to reduce generation of unneeded electricity has been used by Gould Academy to improve lighting efficiency in all school buildings.

With the future of CMP's demand reduction programs uncertain, school officials said that Gould was fortunate to have taken advantage of the Power Partners project while it was still available.

According to Headmaster Bill Clough, the annual savings will be in the neighborhood of 300,000 kilowatt hours--translating into dollar savings of approximately $25,000 per year.

The $40,000 CMP-supported grant made the investment especially interesting to the school. Steven Grimshaw, president of Lighting Solutions, the Portland energy consulting company overseeing the job, said, "It's an unsurpassed opportunity for Gould Academy to do a capital improvement like this, which will pay its way in the future."

According to Lee Carroll, chair of the Gould Trustee Committee on Buildings and Grounds, there wasn't much question after an energy audit of the school was commissioned. "We usually forego expensive projects that aren't vital," he said. "But when the numbers came in on the potential savings, they were too big to walk away from.

The public, the utility, and the environment are all supposed to benefit, according to Grimshaw. The theory behind the demand reduction program is that electricity that is not generated cannot have a negative impact on the environment, nor will it lead to expensive construction of more power generation facilities on the part of the utility.

Gould Academy, meanwhile, is assured of the removal of its older, inefficient lights, some of which have small quantities of hazardous wastes from the antiquated ballasts. The new lamps, driven by electronic rather than magnetic ballasts, are cleaner and will last 10 to 20 times longer than older incandescents, which means less maintenance is required, and fewer replacements are needed each year.

Gould Trustee Carroll; Maynard Morgan, director of buildings and grounds; Barbara Merrill-Lapham, comptroller; and Headmaster Bill Clough were instrumental in developing the project with Grimshaw's company. Former faculty member and alumnus Peter Chandler provided the initial inspiration for the project.

Consciousness of the need to reduce energy consumption was also heightened at Gould last year when two Gould students attended a weekend energy conservation workshop with other students from throughout Maine. "The students deserve credit for bringing it to higher on the school's agenda," said Carroll.

Electric meters have been installed throughout the school to verify the actual energy savings over the next several years. Institutional lighting is just one small component of the overall Power Partners Program throughout CMP's service territory. Gould's 300,000 kilowatt-hour savings are a fraction of the over 50-million kilowatt hours expected of the Power Partners Program.

NOVA narrows building hunt to three sites

By RICH PLANTE

The list of buildings being considered for Northern Oxford Vocational Area courses has been narrowed from nine to three sites.

Those sites include the former Bass Shoe building on Route 2 in Rumford, the former Rumford Center School, and available space in Mountain Valley High School, according to Board Chairman Norman Clanton, who reported for the facilities committee.

Noting that the Bass building has enough space to "accommodate all the programs," Clanton said the building has a leaking roof because of being left unheated last winter. He said the best situation for NOVA would be to lease the building from an investor willing to buy it. He said NOVA could seek a lease for the Rumford Center School building, but it would need to have an addition to house all the NOVA programs.

The third possibility the facilities committee is exploring is adding to the Mountain Valley High School as well as having courses in existing space, Clanton said.

He said short-term housing solutions are needed for the Allied Health and Certified Nurse Assistant and Building Trades programs. Clanton said all three buildings have short-term possibilities, but repairing the Bass building roof would be an obstacle.

The next NOVA board meeting is Dec. 14 at the NOVA office on Parker Street in Mexico. The NOVA 2000 committee will meet Dec. 8 at 4 p.m., and a special board meeting is tentatively set for 6 p.m. that same day to vote on a new Adult and Community Education Director.

The board accepted with regret the resignation of Adult Education Director Cynthia Tanous. The board will have a budget workshop on Dec. 14 at the NOVA office.

PRE-SEASON TELSTAR WINTER SPORTS MEETING

The Telstar High School Athletic Department will hold a pre-season winter sports meeting for all high school athletes on Thursday, Dec. 2 at 7 p.m. in the school's auditorium.

Dr. Joseph F. DeMarco, D.C. will be the keynote speaker. Telstar athletic director Carroll Higgins will review the school's athletic policies regarding chemical use and academic eligibility. Telstar chemical health coordinator Rod Abbott will also speak.

CPS PTA MEETS

More than 50 Crescent Park School parents and students attended the Nov. 16 PTA meeting to learn about the EduQuest computer program now being piloted in four CPS classrooms. Judy Coolidge, Lenny Hoy, Brenda Wight, and Linda Kuzyk, joined by "System Operator" Peter Kuzyk, led the hands-on computer orientation in their classrooms.

Pattie Parsons reported for treasurer Ellen Greeke. There is $1,055 in the account and the budget is being worked on. There is also $100 for field trips, earned at last year's May Fair. One hundred dollars was donated to Kids for Trees.

Principal David Murphy reported that the recent Halloween Haunted Village had been the most successful PTA-community event he could remember, with 700-800 people in attendance. He expressed thanks to all who made the event so successful. Prizes were awarded to Mr. Hoy and Mrs. Caddigan for the best decorated portable, with second prize going to Mrs. Greeke and Ms. Tupper. Prizes will be books for first place and games for second place. He also reminded parents to sign up for RugRats, Tuesday night, Nov. 23. He and Mr. Plummer are working with Mt. Abram to present CPS students with reduced ski rates for after school, snow days and teacher workshop days.

Cyndy Kane Olson reported for the playground committee. Quilt raffle tickets are being sold and the "Squmpkin" raffle was won by Ray Crockett.

Brenda Wight announced that the eighth annual CPS Craft Fair was bigger and better than in years past, netting $2,000 after all debts are paid.

Pattie Parsons reported for movie chair Nancy Hansen. The movie "Dennis the Menace" is booked for Jan. 8 and 9, "Snow White" for March 12 and 13. There will also be movies in April and late May.

Linda Gamble spoke about grant writing, explaining that she is willing to work with anyone who wants to get involved and the group must come up with a list of its needs.

The meeting concluded with a discussion of the hot lunch program. David Murphy has spoken to kitchen manager Flossie Walker who is very willing to discuss issues of waste, nutrition and variety with the PTA. Co-presidents will inform parents via "CPS Times" if there is to be a meeting in the near future with the kitchen personnel. Lynn Zimmerman will gather information from a Portland nutritionist she knows who planned the Portland school lunch menu.

Next meeting, Wednesday, Jan. 12, 6:30-8, refreshments and babysitting provided.

Marie Nuppula and Irene Pepicillo of Owls Head were in town recently pursuing their hobby of taking pictures of Grange Halls. From here they drove to Newry, Gilead, on to Jay and Fayette, then into Augusta. They remarked on the condition of the Grange signs and expressed pleasure of those in Andover and Upton. The Owls Head Grange received a second place award of $200 for the most up-to-date with Community Service. Bill Nuppula worked on the satellite and the family lived in Andover several years.

John and Lucilla Romprey of Waterboro spent a weekend recently at their recently purchased lot on the right of way off Lane Hill.

The Ladies Aid met Thursday to discuss the Christmas program up coming. Proceeds from the cookbooks and recent hunters breakfast and lunch served were turned in. It was thought there would be plenty of funds to finish paying the publisher of cookbooks by Dec. 1.

Two encounters of the scary kind in one day are three too many. An illiterate cow moose stepped onto the road before the Moose Crossing signs. I slowed up as rapidly as I could but in a split second realized that if she continued at her speed I'd not be able to avoid her. As she reached the centerline she turned her head toward me, stopped, whirled around, lost her footing and was on her belly in the road as I passed. By this time I was traveling slowly so was able to see in the rear view mirror that she was standing. Returning from down country, I slowed as I approached the moosey place in Grafton, which was most fortunate as I was still scary close to the bull moose which burst out of the brush and ran across the road a short distance ahead of me.

By COLISTA MORGAN

It doesn't seem possible that November is on the way out.

Some poets give the impression that this month is solemn, but I think that it has its beauty. There have been blue days and white clouds pinned here and there, crisp nights, frost clear stars, clinging leaves that rustle and fall zig-zag to the ground.

The lofty treetops seem to brush the sky as they gleam with dawn's early light (not so early either), just the first light or they glow when the last fires of sunset burn. I like trees whether they are robed in spring's soft sheen, summer's green, autumn's red and gold or ermine jewels of winter.

One day by the pond I came across the cattails. Their long, slender leaves were swaying in the breeze. The brown heads turn to "cotton" in the fall. They consist of thousands of little parachutes designed to carry seeds away from the parent plant. Indians used them to line their papoose carriers, as well as for many other purposes.

Upon a high hill the view is magnificent--gentle hills and broad valley, fields and woods, and the pond, which wears a turquoise blue print.

A blue jay planes through a dark green hemlock branch to the accompaniment of raucous squawking. The silence is intriguing.

So November's harvest store brings thoughts of what we are thankful for.

On Sunday, Frank and Mary Perham entertained Paula Perham; Dana Morgan; Paul Perham; Jane Howard of West Paris; Pam Perham, Portland; Tricia Perham, Whately, Mass.; and Nestor Tamminen, Greenwood for an early Thanksgiving dinner at their new camp. Paul is leaving for North Carolina later in the week.

Later in the afternoon coffee and pie were served to Pat and Charlie Verrill, Norway; Katie Tamminen, MSHCF; Deven, Kara and Ian Andrews, Greenwood; Betty and Dell Hayes, North Norway; Tony and Errol Andrews and Sue Piawlock, Lewiston.

At this time the ice has again vanished from the pond.

John and Dotty Betts were in North Conway over the weekend.

David and Mary Holt were at the farm on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fran Piccirillo moved into their new house on Saturday. We all wish them all good things.

My brother Ernest came home from the hospital but was home but a few days, then had to return.

Milton and Eleanor Inman were in Milan, N.H., on Sunday.

Vicky Sanborn, Brant and Caroline from North Conway, N.H., visited with her parents, Vernon and Miriam Inman on Sunday.

West Paris Historical Society met Monday evening for a potluck supper and meeting. It was decided to have the next meeting a week earlier than usual--on Monday, Dec. 13, beginning at 6:30. Each member can bring a friend and we will have an exchange of gifts. Milton Inman volunteered to have a Christmas tree for the occasion. Olga Gellatly will play Christmas carols for the sing-a-long. It was voted to have refreshments after the tree. George Gibbs gave us a very interesting and informative presentation on the history of the Grange in West Paris and the churches in North Paris and West Paris. George has done a lot of research for the Bicentennial Book.

Louise Powell, Hale and Bernice Wing, Dixfield called on Alma Hewey on Wednesday.

Rev. Jane Rich called on Florence Hall, Alma Hewey and Gertrude Hutchins recently.

A niece, formerly of Mexico, called on Anne Fox.

Florence Hall will enjoy Thanksgiving Day with the Hall family in Roxbury.

Judy Hall, Roxbury called on Gertrude Hutchins and Florence Hall on Tuesday.

Anne Fox and Gertrude Hutchins had dinner at the school on Thursday.

Thought for the day: People say that lots of germs are passed around on dollar bills, but it isn't true. Nothing could live on a dollar bill.

Another thought for the day: Clothing styles come and clothing styles go, but pants pockets are usually the same. There's very little change in them.

To those who read my column in the Citizen, I wish to say that I am back to write again and I hope that I can continue. I have had two sessions in the hospital this fall and now I should be ready for the winter. My last session in the hospital was caused by a bad fall that injured the nerve to my left eye, and as I see double, I am typing this news with my left eye closed. I wasn't drunk, you understand. The reason for my falling was medication that lowered my blood pressure so low that I apparently fainted. Anyway, I want to thank those who sent me cards, well wishes, or brought flowers. Also thanks for the visits. My eye doctor assures me that I will be seeing right again in time.

Tuesday afternoon, I had an appointment with Dr. Rynne in Lewiston. He told me that it might take six more weeks for my eyesight to return to normal. After leaving Dr. Rynne's office, we visited sister Viva at the Odd Fellows Home in Auburn. Viva had a bad cold, but seemed to be getting along okay. She is quite contented there. She has her own private room and the place is kept very clean. We also visited Helen Seilonen there before returning home.

November 10 was a real nice day. Sister Peggy drove me downstreet in the forenoon for an appointment with Dr. Ware. He checked me over and thought that all was quite well at the present time. Sister Peggy got needed groceries at Shop 'n Save while I was at the doctor's.

Thursday morning looked fairly good, so we left for Bradford, Vt., before 8 a.m. to visit Eva Swanson at Brookside Nursing Home. We were surprised to find her up in a wheelchair, fully dressed and looking like she hadn't been sick at all. Eva suffered a real bad stroke, and when we were up to see her five weeks ago she was in bed, almost totally paralyzed except for her left arm and hand. She couldn't focus her eyes but could move her head a little. They invited us to have lunch with Eva and we accepted. When they were ready, they wheeled Eva to the dining room and up to a table. They brought her a tray of food that had been blended, put a spoon in her left hand and she proceeded to feed herself. She made some mess, but that certainly is to be expected. We were surprised to see how well she could do. She was normally a right-handed person, but she was doing a fine job of shoveling with the left hand. After she had her lunch eaten, they put her to bed for a nap, so we left for home.

Back in August we had a nice letter from Margaret Howe Schnur in Colo, Iowa. I had intended to answer that letter quite some time ago, but did finally get around to answering it last Friday. They had had a large amount of rain but weren't damaged as much as many of the others in nearby areas.

Friday evening, Peggy and I attended the Mock Hee Haw Show, which was held at the Norway Legion Hall. It was a real good show with lots of local talent. The Black Mountain Band furnished a lot of the music and they put on a real nice show. All actors were performing free of charge and had a good audience.

On Saturday I decided to try something a little different. Peggy had saved some seed from an angel trumpet plant that came up last spring and blossomed. Instead of just planting the seed outdoors in the flower garden, I planted some peat pots of potting soil with the seed and then put them outside where they will freeze up this winter. If they come up in the spring, I'll try to transplant them where I want them.

Peggy had almost decided to buy an artificial Christmas tree at LaVerdiere's, but on further inspection decided that the top section of the one that we already have would do quite nicely. I'll make a base for it.

Peggy attended the dance at Locke Mills in the evening. She reported that they had a good time.

Our Sunday callers were Loretta and Emerson Merrill. They came to pick up a birthday cake and some presents that Peggy had for Loretta. Loretta has just recently returned from a trip to Florida with Barbara Stevens, where they visited relatives of Barbara's husband for about a week.

There will be a dance at Locke Mills Town Hall on Nov. 27 with the Richard Felt Orchestra furnishing the music. There will be dances at West Paris Grange Hall on Dec. 4 and again Dec. 11. The first dance will be a regular dance, and the dance on the second Saturday will benefit Christmas for Kids. Receipts from the dance will be divided with part going to benefit children in the SAD44 area and part going to benefit children in SAD17 area.

The West Paris School is still accepting Campbell Soup labels if anyone has some to donate to them.

Hunting season is on and the Archie Lovejoy family have had lots of callers. Some come for the purpose of doing some hunting. Their recent callers have been Marsha Baxter and Jay Whittemore from Oxford, David Small from Kennebunkport, Criss Whittemore from South Paris and Christopher Bishop from Old Town.

Impi and Raymond Mack called on Tammy Farnum in Bryant Pond recently.

No. Woodstock

By SHANE BILLINGS

It is early evening as I sit down to write my first column for The Bethel Citizen. While recently reading the paper, I noticed a letter from someone who wanted to know why there were no longer correspondents from Rowe Hill, Milton, North Woodstock, as well as various other villages. Her letter inspired me to begin a column that will tell about the happenings of the tiny community of North Woodstock, also known as Pinhook.

Years ago my aunt Linda wrote this same column for the paper. It is fun to be starting it up again, considering that I love to write; and what better to write about than the everyday happenings of this peaceful little community?

Thanksgiving will soon be upon us and the members of the North Woodstock Community Club have been selling tickets for a Thanksgiving basket to raise money for the meeting house. By the time you read this the holiday will be a day away, and I hope you all have a nice one, as I'm sure we will here.

On Friday and Saturday last week the Telstar Drama Club presented "The Curious Savage." I plan to be on hand to watch it and to review it for the school newspaper. My brother Jason is a member of the cast. By the time you read this the play will be over and I'm sure it will be a success.

This past weekend Norma and Rob Davis were visited by their three granddaughters. It is very nice for them to see the kids, and they all have a fun time while they are here.

Errol Silver celebrated his first birthday with a small family party on Sunday, Nov. 7. His sister Joelle's kitten disappeared for several days, but recently returned home.

Emma and Lee Billings journeyed to Sumner this past Sunday for a visit at Gerald Gannon's camp. They had a good time.

Also on Sunday, Herschel Abbott went to Industry to do some hunting with a friend.

Next Wednesday is the Woodstock Elementary School concert. Bridget Billings, Ashley Miller, and Adam Miller will all be singing and it should be a very nice program.

That is just about all the news I have for my first column, and I need to go do my homework. I would like to encourage anyone in North Woodstock or the neighboring areas to call me with any news you have. This is your column, and whatever you have to say deserves a place in the paper.

I hope everyone has a nice, safe, and happy week.

Our most sincere sympathy is extended to the families of "Nick" Nickerson and Mrs. Louise Annis.

Norma and David Salway went to Brewer recently for the State Class D final for the championship of Boys' Soccer, where the Waynflete boys and their coach, Brandon Salway were the champions over Ashland, 2-1.

I spent several days last week with the Bean-Turner family in Otisfield. Ethel drove me to Portland one day for my medical appointment. We also called on Kassi and Kaity at their new home in Portland. Kaity was an overnight visitor here Friday night.

When I talked with Sylvia in Alaska last weekend they had just lost their cat to old age. Kitty had been a family pet for 22 years.

Mrs. Muriel Kimball of South Waterford and Mrs. Dorothy Scribner, also of South Waterford, visited the Bill Bancrofts Wednesday.

A very heavy, white frost coated everything outside this Friday morning.

I received a surprise phone call one morning lately, Mrs. Jean Ness called me from Auburn where they are now living. Her husband Norman had been transferred to the southern part of the state. They were living in Orono since leaving Bethel.

North Newry

By GIL SEELEY

Members of the "Newry Bowling Gang" who went to the Oxford Lanes in Rumford were Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Gil Seeley, Bea Lowell, Doris Parent and Olive Anderson. Jim Anderson and Rena Powers were guests. Of the "Lefties" Karlene was high on the triples but Gil beat her by two pins on the singles. Karlene had five spares, Betsy had five spares, Gil had two spares and one strike, Bea had two spares and one strike, Doris had one spare and Olive had one spare and one strike.

Karlene Bachelder and yours truly spent a delightful half hour with neighbor Sue Wight who is homebound with a leg/foot cast on, and does not get around like she used to. Soon she will be operated on and hopefully will be her old self again. We wish her the best and may God heal her fast.

Jenny Wight, a student at the University of New Hampshire visited with her grandparents Sylvia and Bill Wight during the long weekend of Veterans Day, and they took her home to Old Town on Saturday.

The Windy Valleys Sno-Mobile Club met Thursday night, Nov. 18, at the Town Building with President Owen Wight presiding. Sylvia Wight read the notes of the last meeting and brought the finances up to date. She also reported on the M.S.A. meeting of Nov. 16 in Bangor and the success of the lawn sale in October. The trail men held a discussion on possible new trails. They also are busy grooming the old ones. The next meeting will be Dec. 16 at Leon Dunn's residence with a potluck supper at 6 and exchange of Xmas gifts.

Ten Thanksgiving fruit baskets were made and delivered to the elderly and shut-ins by the Newry Mothers Club.

Rena Powers is at the Norway hospital having some surgery done on her knee. We wish her speedy recovery.

Gilead murder

Pike claims defamation

By JENNIFER SULLIVAN

A Bethel man accused of being an alternate suspect in the shotgun murder of Richie Hutchins has filed suit against the father of the man ultimately convicted of the killing, accusing him of defamation.

Raymond Chapman of Gilead told two people--including plaintiff Scott Pike's roommate--that Pike, not Chapman's son, was the real killer, a complaint filed to Oxford County Superior Court alleges.

David Chapman was convicted of murder in June. The prosecution charged that he shot and killed the 28-year-old Hutchins in Gilead last year after an arm wrestling match between them turned unfriendly. The 39-year-old man was sentenced to 45 years in prison.

But defense lawyer Jack Simmons charged that the evidence pointed to Pike--who was with Chapman and Hutchins on the night of the murder--as the real killer. Pike said the accusation has resulted in "a total nightmare."

"I was labeled as an alternate suspect by the defense. It was a total lie," Pike, 21, said in an affidavit. "I was put through hell as a result of their assertions in trial and otherwise that I had killed Richard Hutchins."

Lawyer Valerie Stanfill, who worked with Simmons in defending Chapman, said they will also represent Raymond Chapman in defending him against Pike's charges.

"We think that they're just not well-founded. Besides, this is an allegation that was splashed across the newspapers at the time," Stanfill said Friday. "It was clearly the theory of a defense in a murder case, which is privileged."

Raymond Chapman--also known as Rugged--repeated the alternate suspect allegations outside the courtroom, Pike charges. Chapman supposedly told two pipe welders at the Sunday River Ski Resort that Pike murdered Hutchins and robbed him of about $2,700.

"Mr. Chapman stated to us that his son did not kill Richie Hutchins but Scott Pike did," Pike's roommate, Bruce Smith of Bethel said in an affidavit.

Smith said he and fellow pipe welder Eric Zale were taking a break from their work at the resort when they were approached by the elder Chapman.

"He started telling us about his son's murder trail, which was still on-going," Smith said. "Mr. Chapman stated that the night before Richard Hutchins was killed . . . Richard Hutchins, Scott Pike and Tony Bennett went to New Hampshire to do some kind of deal and that they came back to Maine, each with $2,700. He then said that Richard Hutchins was killed by Scott Pike, who robbed him of the $2,700. He said he knew this because Richard Hutchins was found dead with only $7 on him."

Pike claims he has suffered humiliation, embarrassment, harm to reputation and loss of social standing as a result of Raymond Chapman's remarks, according to a complaint filed on behalf by Rumford lawyer Thomas S. Carey.

HANNON HAS OUTSTANDING HOCKEY SEASON AT CLARK

Amy Hannon of Gilead helped lead the Clark University field hockey team to 11-5-2 record, a ranking of eighth in New England.

Sophomore wing Hannon was the squad's second leading scorer, with five goals and a school record 11 assists for 21 points. Hannon, a 1992 Telstar High School graduate, had five game-winning assists this year.

SENIOR COMPANION COMES TO OXFORD COUNTY

The nationally acclaimed program, Senior companion, is now being extended to Oxford County through the combined efforts of the University of Maine Cooperative Extension and Androscoggin Home Health Services.

The Senior Companion Program is a volunteer program for older Americans who are interested in helping those who are homebound to maintain their independence. Companions work 20 hours per week visiting several people who are homebound. Androscoggin Home Health Services will connect companions with those needing the program.

"As the name implies, the Senior Companions' purpose is to provide companionship," explains Wendy Legg Pollock, extension educator and coordinator of the program in Oxford County. "They may read to those they visit, help them write letters, share lunch, go shopping, take a walk, or reminisce."

"Probably the Companions' most important role is to help others combat loneliness and isolation, which can threaten their independence and health," Pollock continues. "Companions may also provide respite services for family caregivers."

The program is now seeking Senior Companions to work in Oxford County. Eligible persons must be at least 60 years old and have limited income. Companions will receive a stipend which is not taxable and does not affect eligibility for other benefits, such as food stamps, SSI, heat assistance, etc.

For more information about the Senior Companion Program in Oxford County, contact Wendy Legg Pollock at 743-6329 or 1-800-287-1482, or Shirley Powell of Androscoggin Home Health Services at 364-3728 or 1-800-482-7412.

Baker received her award at the banks recent sixth annual employee recognition dinner at the Shorelands Restaurant in Harrison. Baker joined the bank in 1988. News from the
The Bethel Library

The Community Retirement Living Committee of the Bethel Area Health Center has placed a videotape at the library which shows "The Highlands of Topsham."

The committee is pursuing the goal of establishing a facility similar to the Highlands in Bethel. If you are interested, Jean Bass (824-2653) or Walter Hatch (824-3560) can answer your questions.

Slim Clark, singer and cowboy, also known as "'Yodelin' Slim Clark," has presented the library with his biography, which is full of pictures and music. The biography was published in Germany, where American country music is very popular. (note: Slim Clark passed his musical talent on to his daughter, Bethel's Jewel Clark).

Linda Gamble donated three Birthday Books to the library: "The Candlewick Book of Fairy Tales" in honor of Sarah Gamble's ninth birthday, "The Tub Grandfather" in honor of Kelsey Gamble's third birthday, and "Macmillan Children's Guide to Endangered Animals" in honor of Buzz Gamble's birthday.

Das Puppenspiel

Mahoosuc Arts notes:

Where can you play with Gerda and Kai in the Garden of the Flower woman? Be captured by Gypsies and meet the robber girl? Take a midnight venture into a sleeping village with a gnome?

On Saturday, Nov. 17, at the Bingham Auditorium on Gould Academy's campus. The curtain rises at 7 p.m. The Mahoosuc Arts Council invites everyone to celebrate the beginning of the holiday season with their families by attending Das Puppenspiel Puppet Theater's production of "The Snow Queen."

In a faithful adaptation of Hans Christian Andersen's classic tale of fantasy and friendship, a combination of exquisitely designed Japanese "bunraku" and "body" puppets are used to tell the story of little Gerda's quest to find her friend, Kai, who has been taken to the far north by the Snow Queen. An original musical score and special effects further enhance the charm and adventure of Gerda's search.

Now entering its 18th season, Das Puppenspiel is one of only three puppet theaters in the United States currently receiving recognition and support from the Theatre Program of the National Endowment for the Arts. Since 1974, it has been an ensemble with a single vision of the creation and performance of quality theater for children and adults, using puppets as portrayers of that vision.

Tickets are available at Preb's Pharmacy in Bethel or can be reserved by calling the Mahoosuc Arts office at 824-3575. Ticket prices are: $4 children and $6 adults, in advance and $6 children and $8 adults, at the door.

Thanksgiving Day greetings to all.

As this day of traditional feasting approaches let us never forget the true meaning of the holiday, particularly in these times of stress ,need and hunger surrounding all of us, even in our own country. We who have a roof over our heads and food in the pantry and have some semblance of good health have been truly blessed so let us not forget to share what we have and be benevolent and gracious to those less fortunate than ourselves. Enjoy your day, with praise to the being who watches over us all.

Lisa Thurston and Ron Ferris have taken a vacation this week from their employment at Newton and Tebbets to go hunting. Chuck Mason, Jr., was reported was a lucky hunter of the area.

Katie Cole, Cindy Wheeler and Nancy Lee Cross returned last week from their trip to California. While there they toured Beverly Hills, Hollywood and Universal Studios.

Linda Smith will be entertaining her grandmother, Yvonne Sessions, with her daughter Lorraine for the Thanksgiving holidays.

Danny and Luella Cole and family will be entertaining her brother, Robert Belanger, and friend Bonnie Clough of Bethel for the holiday.

Gerald and Louise Loring will celebrate Thanksgiving with her son and his family, Herbert, Josh and Libby Foster of Norway, at the Town and Country in Gorham, N.H.

Fernand and Beverly Corriveau and family will be passing the holiday with their daughter and family, the Ronald Morins' of Andover.

So. Woodstock

Esther Davis has returned from her visit with her daughter Lorraine Nowlin in Summerfield, Fla. Summerfield is next to Ocala, which is famous for horses. While Esther was there her granddaughter Diane Nowlin Fisher from Texas visited with her two daughters, Lauren Elizabeth, 2 1/2, and Amy Lynn, 10 months. Esther flew alone both ways. They landed in Tampa, and it's a two-and-one-half-hour drive to Summerfield. She said the weather was real nice and too hot most of the time.

I am glad to report that Emery Ryerson is home from the hospital and seems to be doing well.

Emily Phillips and Kristin Hutchinson stopped by this week to sell chances on a 50-50 raffle for the Western Maine 4-H Dairy Club.

Polly Croteau is home from the hospital. I have not spoken with her but hope she's coming along okay.

Larry Billings, curator of Woodstock Historical Society reports that Eva Billings Twitchell gave some Woodstock memorabilia to the Historical Society. It included a PTA ledger, a picture of Rev. Kinsman's Delaware home, and a baseball picture. The society notes that many old-fashioned ornaments are used in homes this time of year. This is an engaging tradition. Curator Billings also adds that the society fosters an interest in Maine's outstanding characteristics and values. It gives us a greater awareness of our state's background. The museum reproduces the memories of days gone but not forgotten.

Beverly Stevens and Andrea Wing made a trip to L.L. Bean in Freeport on Thursday. Andrea did a little Christmas shopping. They stopped at McDonald's in Freeport after the shopping.

George V. Larson II

From the Bethel Area

Health Center

George V. Larson II, executive director of the Bethel Area Health Center, has advanced to Fellow in the American College of Heath Care Executives, a Chicago-based international professional society representing more than 27,000 health care executives.

Larson first attained membership, the second level of professional achievement in the college, on July 1, 1987. To earn membership Larson had to show commitment to continuing education, progression in professional experience and participation in voluntary and community affairs. In addition, Larson had to complete comprehensive oral and written examinations on a variety of health care management subjects.

To become a fellow, Larson submitted four lengthy case studies in health care and developed an educational plan based on a professional assessment process. In addition, he documented participation in ongoing continuing education, and voluntary professional, civic and community affairs.

Moon to fade away Saturday

By ALAN DAVENPORT

On Nov. 28 the moon will enter the Earth's shadow beginning at 11:40 p.m., and sky watchers will be able to witness one of nature's most dramatic celestial events. Total lunar eclipses occur every few years and those that can be seen from Maine are even more rare. The next total eclipse of the moon will occur in the spring of 1996.

A lunar eclipse is one of a very few astronomical events that can be thoroughly enjoyed in the backyard with no optical instruments, but astronomers that evening will get an enhanced view using telescopes at the University of Maine Maynard F. Jordan Observatory. The public is invited to join members of the Penobscot Valley Stargazers Club and the observatory staff beginning at 11:30 p.m. The local amateur club members will have several telescopes on hand and visitors will be welcome to look through those as well as viewing through the Alvan Clark refractor telescope in the observatory. According to Scott Burgess, PVSG president, "Through the telescope it's exciting to see the Earth's shadow passing over the lunar craters and mountains as an eclipse progresses."

During the month's eclipse, the moon will be high in the sky as its northeast edge darkens and it enters the umbra or darkest part of the shadow that our planet casts into space. As more of the lunar face is shaded, the curve of the shadow may convince the doubtful that our planet is, indeed, a round object. One hour and 20 minutes later, the moon will be completely engulfed in shadow, and the most colorful phase of the event will begin.

While in total eclipse, the only light striking the lunar surface is the light that bends around our planet through the atmosphere. Very similar to the light of a sunset, this illumination is usually red and it makes the moon appear ominously orange or reddish brown in its darkened state. How bright or red it appears depends on the condition of our atmosphere and weather. According to experts, eclipses since 1991 have produced a very dark, almost colorless moon because of the dust that Mt. Pinatubo spewed into the atmosphere when it erupted that year. But each successive eclipse has been brighter than the previous, so Mainers may see a colorful sight this time around.

Just Imagine Coffeehouse

Stan Moeller and T.S. Baker, who will be featured at the Dec. 4 Bethel coffeehouse, appeared recently on public radio's "Sometimes Acoustic" to discuss their recent CD release, "Walking on Ledges." Their album has been critiqued as "an incredible piece of work," and their performances are said to demonstrate "powerful songwriting coupled with tight musicianship." Baker plays guitar, keyboards, accordion, mandolin, and various percussive toys; Moeller plays guitar and harmonica. Their music goes beyond folk acoustic to include rock, pop, blues, and Latin jazz. A critic acclaims both as "talented artists in their own right . . . as a duo, they are unstoppable."

The Just Imagine Coffeehouse looks forward to welcoming this husband-wife singer-songwriter team Saturday, Dec. 4, 7 to 10 p.m. The coffeehouse is located at the West Parish Congregational Church, adjacent to Gould Academy. Children, young people, families, seniors are all comfortable in this alcohol-free, smoke-free atmosphere. Donations are requested--$3 for adults, $1.50 for children and seniors. Drop-in talent is welcome. Performances may be canceled if the weather is very bad. Information on such cancellations may be obtained by calling 824-3034 on the day of the performance.

THOUGHTS FROM THE

Pastor's Study

"In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you." I Thessalonians 5:18)

Thanksgiving is a way of life for every believer in the Lord Jesus Christ. It is the simple acknowledgment of God's existence, His Creation and His Salvation. For the believer, every day is a day to give thanks and praise to God. The Psalmist expressed this with deep emotion under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit when he wrote: "O sing unto the Lord a new song: sing unto the Lord all the earth. Sing unto the Lord, bless his name; shew forth his salvation from day to day. Declare his glory among the heathen, his wonders among all people. For the Lord is great, and greatly to be praised: he is to be feared above all gods. For all the gods of the nations are idols: but the Lord made the heavens." (Psalm 96:1-5)

The Pilgrims knew this great God who created and saved them through the redemption and forgiveness of sin found in Jesus Christ (see Colossians 1:12-14). Their journey in the Mayflower and their emigration to the New World held many struggles and grievous trials, yet their hearts still could overflow with sincere praise to a personal God who was their "refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." (Psalm 46:1) Thanksgiving Day is a special reminder to the pilgrims of this generation that we are able to thank God in all of our circumstances for "we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." (Romans 8:28)

On the other hand, Thanksgiving Day creates a dilemma for the atheist and the agnostic. They are faced with a decision: either they refuse to observe the holiday altogether or choose to simply give thanks to one another for all they have done for each other. Apparently this is the direction that some public school textbook manufacturers have taken. They claim that the pilgrims of Plymouth Colony were giving thanks to the Indians. By this smooth rewriting of history, God is kept out of the classroom, and no child is indoctrinated about a loving Creator who takes care of them. Granted, it is good to give thanks to family and friends, but it is a tragedy for one to live his life ignoring the Creator God of Whom it is written: "Honor and majesty are before him: strength and beauty are in his sanctuary. Give unto the Lord the glory Due unto his name." (Psalm 95:6,7)

If you are a believer in the Lord God, may this Thanksgiving Day be a special time of remembering all His mercies and blessings. May it also be a time to consider the example of faithful and courageous men and women who served God in past years.

If you do not believe that there exists a God to whom you are to give thanks, remember that only "the fool hath said in his heart, 'There is no God.'" (Psalm 14:1) The way of wisdom is to listen attentively to what God has said: "Look unto Me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth: for I am God, and there is none else." (Isaiah 45:22)
